Creating Change for Better

Environmental, Social & Governance Summary Report 2021
Welcome from our owners

In their first year of co-ownership of Asda, TDR Capital and Mohsin and Zuber Issa reflect on progress made on Asda’s ESG agenda and their plans to grow the business to create a sustainable future.

Despite another year of unprecedented change and uncertainty, the Asda team continues to adapt and innovate for our customers, colleagues and communities. While keeping shelves stocked and many thousands in work, we’ve also made progress on our Creating Change for Better promises and remained a consistent force for good.

From continuing to reduce our carbon emissions and stepping up our support for local communities, against a challenging backdrop 2021 has been year of progress on our ambition to create change for better, growing our business in a way that creates a sustainable future for our company and generations to come.

As a growth business serving almost every postcode in the UK through our various store formats and online presence, employing 145,000 colleagues and sourcing from around 4000 suppliers, we have the opportunity to make an important contribution to people and planet. Through this report, we will share our progress on the key ESG issues that matter to our business and to you, our stakeholders.

Despite the ongoing and immediate challenges presented by the pandemic and global unrest, we have not lost sight of our role in broader issues faced by society today. Climate change is an urgent and devastating global problem that presents material risks to supply chains and our ability to achieve sustained growth now and in the medium to long term. In this report, you’ll see we are committed to playing our part in both protecting and regenerating our planet. We’re providing greater transparency through our reporting, including sharing our full carbon footprint and roadmap to operational net zero for the first time.
We have also continued our journey to more sustainably source our key commodities and in our efforts to reduce waste in our business, be that operational, food or packaging, as well as bringing our refill zones to more customers across the UK.

You can read more about our Better Planet.

In the wake of the pandemic, public health has been thrust into the spotlight in a way that none of us could have predicted, and as a grocery retailer we’re concerned about the growing inequalities affecting health outcomes. We know the difference having access to a healthy diet and lifestyle can make, and understand our role in providing opportunities to make better choices.

Our community work continues to go from strength to strength and through Asda Foundation we have increased our investment into our local communities. In 2021 we channelled our efforts into tackling barriers to kids reaching their full potential, focusing on food poverty, inclusion and wellbeing, and we will continue to build on this moving forwards. We also celebrated the 25th anniversary of our award-winning fundraising and behaviour-change breast cancer awareness campaign Tickled Pink and we have bold plans for the next five years – including breaking £100m in fundraising for essential services, awareness and research.

We continued to make progress on being a truly inclusive retailer where people love to work and shop. We know women are underrepresented at management levels in retail and so we’ve set ourselves new targets to increase the proportion of female general store managers to 30% by 2025. And whilst our operations are UK-focused, our supply chain is global. Asda has operated under Walmart’s responsible sourcing programme for the past 20 years, and in 2021 took the opportunity to start to build a bespoke human rights programme that focuses on Asda’s business, supply chain and risks.

You can read more about our Better Lives.

And finally, as we put plans in place to take this business into a period of sustained growth, we’re doing so in a responsible way. Particularly where we’re moving off Walmart programmes and processes, we’re working to install new compliance programmes that support this expertise and passion towards our Creating Change for Better agenda. Good governance is a fundamental factor, and welcoming Lord Rose as Chairman and Dame Alison Carnwath as non-Executive Director in 2021 strengthened our leadership.

Read more about how we hold ourselves accountable to be a Better Business.

Asda has a bright future – and we’re excited to play our part in accelerating this great business. The scale of Asda’s reach means we can make an important contribution to both society and the planet, and we’re committed to continuing progress across our ESG agenda so that we can create lasting, positive change for better.

Environmental, Social & Governance Summary Report 2021
ESG strategy

In 2021, we listened to customers, colleagues and wider stakeholders to ensure our Creating Change for Better strategy was future-fit to make the greatest impact possible on ESG issues faced by our communities, society and the planet.

To align further with stakeholder expectations, we restructured our Creating Change for Better programme to comprise three, rather than four, pillars, covering our commitments to ESG best practices:

Environmental
Better Planet: We aim to work to protect and conserve the world around us through sustainable practices and initiatives.

Social
Better Lives: We aim to remove the barriers to opportunity, health and wellbeing for our customers, colleagues and communities.

Governance
Better Business: We hold ourselves to the highest standards of responsible business, to ensure Asda is a fair, safe and transparent place to work and shop.

Within these pillars, we now have our clearest view to date of the most important topics to our business and to our stakeholders, derived from a detailed materiality assessment.

Our focus

These ESG topic areas are ones upon which Asda can have a major impact, namely our climate change response, how we deal with packaging, food and operational waste, enabling our customers to enjoy healthy, sustainable diets and supporting our local communities. These priority issues are given extra focus and resource, to ensure that we remain on track and moving at pace to meet our commitments.

Meanwhile, we remain vigilant of emerging priorities such as biodiversity, circular economy and equity, diversity and inclusion, and have teams actively progressing all other areas of ESG topics identified in the materiality matrix.

Strategy scope

While included under the Asda Creating Change for Better programme, our George Sustainability Strategy sets bespoke targets including on responsibly sourced fibres, circular economy, hazardous waste, worker rights and packaging.
